

MARK WOLF - congas and percussion, vocals

Mark (Wolfie) Wolf comes from musical family as both his mother and father were accomplished musicians. Mark's mother taught piano and voice, elementary music, directed church choirs and led various productions as well as lending her opera style voice to various churches and symphonies. Mark's father played the drums and sang in country and variety club bands since the age of 16 and led his own band for 30 years.

While growing up and attending high school in the South Central Pennsylvania area, Mark did everything musically possible. He began playing the drums at age 6, and took every opportunity to perform or play in musicals, plays, marching band and concert band, choirs, even a barber shop quartet: you name it, and he did it! While still in high school he joined a pop rock band and also started teaching youngsters the basics of drumming.

After high school he started and led his most successful band, Slayer Town playing regionally as a rock/Van Halen tribute band.

After marrying his wife Connie (of 28 years), Wolf started a business, coached high school football for 15 years, and took a long hiatus from the music industry. After relocating to Florida, Mark joined a very successful SW Florida regional band as their percussionist. He's the jack-of-all trades for the Hitsville Live Band, playing a variety of percussion, congas and lending his voice to lead and background vocals.

His favorite music group is Earth, Wind and Fire, and he loves the Motown feel, funk, R&B, soul and some occasional rock.
